

Language Selection

Thank You Neil Young

In 2002 Neil Young loaned his 100 year old Baltic schooner 'Ragland' to Planktos for its first research efforts in learning the arts of ocean ecosystem restoration.

Out of this work, Planktos has become a world leader in global ecorestoration. Planktos wants to thank Neil for his support of our fledgling efforts. We are proud to do so today by contributing carbon offsets from our ecosystem renewal to zero out all the CO₂ created by and activities relayed to this years Bridge School Benefit Concert.

Planktos Inc is dedicated to the greenest possible solutions to the planet's darkest environmental and climate ills. By restoring phytoplankton populations in the world's oceans and mixed native species forests on denuded lands, we are renewing the biosphere, reclaiming habitats, reviving biodiversity, and generating greenhouse gas (GHG) mitigation credits to underwrite this rescue effort for generations yet to come.

The California Climate Change Challenge

California's pioneering Global Warming Solutions Act aims to cut the state's greenhouse gas emissions by 25% by 2020. It vaults our state to the forefront of America's climate control battle and offers inspiring leadership for the nation as a whole. BUT we don't have to wait until 2020 to accomplish this, we can meet this goal and more, and we can do it here and now.

The Choice is Yours

You can lead by example and reduce your family's emissions by 25% or even offsets them completely for just a few dollars a month. At the Planktos Ecorestoration Store you can zero out the CO₂ from your household, vehicles, airline trips, or even events like this. And shrinking your carbon footprint with ecorestoration credits not only cleanses the atmosphere, it helps revive endangered species, wounded ecosystems, and failing food chains worldwide.

To begin clearing the skies, greening the hills, and feeding the seas, just visit www.planktos.com/store. To show your support for the Bridge School Benefit Concert please visit www.bridgeschool.org/events.